and

Associazione Ingegneria Sismica Italiana (ISI)

L'Aquila, June 26th 2019

This Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) sets for the terms and understanding between the Turkish Association for Seismic Isolation (TASI) and Associazione Ingegneria Sismica Italiana (ISI) to set the terms and content of the collaboration between the two parties.

Background

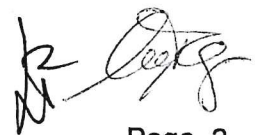

Associazione Ingegneria Sismica Italiana (ISI) and Turkish Association for Seismic Isolation (TASI) are leading organizations in the field of earthquake engineering respectively in Italy and Turkey.

Both organizations enroll members that cover important positions and roles in academic and engineering practice in their country. This result in a great experience and background for both parties. Considering the seismicity level and earthquake history in both countries, both the associations address common problems related to earthquake engineering field.

Collaboration and sharing experience, it is of great importance for both parties in order to overcome in more rational and effective way problems and issues related to seismic engineering.

Purpose

The main objective of this MoU is to determine the topics and establish the ways of collaboration for both parties. The other important purpose of collaboration of both parties is to provide capacity building in engineering practice of earthquake engineering both in design and construction applications.

Topics of Collaboration

The main topics shall be list as;
